Bobby Harris

Founder's Story

Bobby Harris is the founder and CEO of BlueGrace Logistics, a tech-enabled third-party logistics service provider headquartered in Tampa, Florida with additional offices located throughout the U.S. The firm's focus on high-performance shipping technology and its progressive approach to transportation management help companies of all sizes drive savings and simplicity into their supply chains.

Harris began his decades-long career in logistics at 18 and with an entrepreneurial spirit, built expertise in the transportation industry that enabled him to launch BlueGrace in 2009 with eight employees which has since grown to over 600 employees. In 2012, Inc. 500 named BlueGrace the 20th fastest growing company in the U.S.

In 2014, Harris won the Ernst and Young Entrepreneur of the Year in the Emerging Category and went on to be named one of four National Finalists. BlueGrace has been named one of Tampa's best places to work for many years and is listed as one of Tampa's largest minority-owned businesses.

Harris sits on the Boards for Marathon Group and Trustees for the University of Tampa; he also supports the Humane Society of Tampa Bay as a member of the Advisory Council. Harris has been featured in the media including MSNBC, TODAY Show, The Wall Street Journal, Forbes, CNBC in addition to many other outlets. Academically, he earned a B.A. in Psychology from the University of South Florida.
